DAILY KENTUCKIAN

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, JUNE 7, 1918.

Established 1879 Vol. XL—Daily Vol. 1. No. 77

Price 3 Cents

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Call 440 if you fail to get the Kentuckian promptly. And if you have a news item, phone it to the same number.

Registrations received by mail have run the total up to 262, in Christian county.

Some of the boys who left here April 26th are already on their way to Europe.

Capt. Harry A. Bullock, a former New York newspaper man, has been killed in France in aerial combat.

Mrs. Dant Boyd, of Whitley county, was thrown by a mule and killed. She had been at work on a farm and was riding the animal from the field.

A rumor that 60,000 Huns had been pocketed and captured, yesterday, was too good to be true. But sooner or later it will be true.

In order to comply with the food administration's regulations as to price, the Mayfield ice company has reduced deliveries to once a day.

Maj. Baracca, an Italian aviator has just brought down his 32nd plane. This ought to cause a big rush to get into the Baracca class.

Detroit will have delivered 19,000 liberty motors by Sept. 1, 1918. Just why this sort of information is not regarded as a military secret is not apparent.

Lieut. Douglas Campbell, of California, is the first American to bring down five German airplanes and qualify as an "Ace." He got the fifth one Monday.

President Wilson has again urged the Governor of California to pardon Mooney, the alleged, bomb thrower. We like to agree with the President whenever we can.

The pictures of Lord Rhondda, England's food administrator, and his wife, as printed in the papers, do not indicate that the Rhonddas have missed many square meals.

PURELY PERSONAL

Messrs. R. T. Stowe and Charles Vaughn have returned from Louisville where they went on a business trip.

Ray Moss and Jack Lacy returned yesterday from Georgetown College. Misses Mary Elizabeth Lacy and Mary Louise Tandy will arrive in a day or two from the same institution.

Mrs. Sam Ficken is visiting in Louisville.

Miss Manie Durham has returned from a visit to Miss Mollie Durham in Madisonville.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Denton, former citizen of this city but now of Lexington, are visiting here.

Miss Thelma Williamson left yesterday morning for a visit to Miss Katherine Dixon, at Henderson.

Dr. J. E. Bell arrived Wednesday night from Florida and left yesterday for Louisville on business. Dr. Bell stated yesterday that he had sold out his property in Florida and is returning here, probably to locate.

Prof. and Mrs. E. B. Weathers, of Franklin, spent yesterday in the city.

Dr. A. J. Kimmons, of Bristol, Tenn., is visiting his brother, Wm. Kimmons.

Sam W. Wade, of Cadiz, is visiting in the city.

Mrs. J. H. Brown is leaving for Central City this morning to be with her husband a few days.

Mrs. A. M. Wallis is visiting her daughter, Mrs. D. W. Chilton, in Fembroke.

Mrs. W. B. Weeks and Mrs. R. H. DeTreville returned to Birmingham, Alabama, this morning.

Prof. John Fruitt, of Liberty, Mo., is here on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Gus Breathitt.

Mrs. M. H. Wood and Mrs. Alex Warfield went to Nashville in their car yesterday and spent the day.

NEARLY A YEAR AGO

Buenos Aires, June 6.—The newspapers here are commenting on the disappearance of the French steamer Clementine, formerly an Argentine vessel, sailing under the name of Malvinas. The steamer, which is 324 tons register, and was built in 1882, left for the Azores Island, July 26 last. Since then, no report has been received of her.

RAIDING U-BOAT CAUGHT A BRITISH STEAMER YESTERDAY

(By International News Service.)

Washington, June 6.—The British steamer, Carpathian, was torpedoed at 9 o'clock yesterday morning by a German submarine 100 miles east of a Virginia cape, the Navy Department announced tonight. The crew was rescued. This makes 6 steamers and 10 schooners sunk. No fresh depredations have been reported as occurring since yesterday.

Survivors of the Carpathian were landed at Old Point Comfort. The vessel sank in seven to ten minutes after being struck. This is the sixteenth sub victim.

HOSPITAL SHIP SUNK.

(By International News Service.)

London, June 6.—A dispatch from the Hague reports hospital ship, Koningen Regentes, was sunk by a mine off the Leman Bank. Four stokers are missing.

BATTLE IN THE AIR.

(By International News Service.)

London, June 6.—An air fight between German and British planes over the north sea was reported by the Admiralty to-night. Two German machines were bagged. Two British machines landed in Holland and were interned.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE.

(By International News Service.)

Jerome, Ariz., June 6.—A mysterious fire destroyed 125 homes here today, making 1,000 Mexicans homeless. The loss is estimated at $500,000.

THE NEXT OFFENSIVE.

(By International News Service.)

London, June 6.—Reports from the German border tell of preparations for a new German peace offensive.

A SCORE, LESS ONE.

(By International News Service.)

Nineteen German Machines were brought down yesterday, the war office announced today.

CHAMPION SWIMMERS.

Miss Fannie Durack, holder of many world's swimming records, and Miss Mina Wylie, also a noted Australian swimmer, arrived at San Francisco from the antipodes, accompanied by Miss Mary Durack, sister of the champion. Duke Kahanamoku, noted Hawaiian swimmer, also arrived on the same steamer with Miss Durack. He will begin an exhibition tour of the country, announced, turning over all the receipts save necessary expenses to the Red Cross.

EQUITY MATTERS.

Judge Bush has dismissed the juries for this week and is trying equity cases and will continue these next week. The juries will be made up again when commonwealth cases begin the third week of court.

BURIED YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Bertha Austin died Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Faulkner, on the Madisonville road, aged 21 years, of tubercular meningitis. The body was buried in Riverside cemetery yesterday.

OFF NOT ON.

June 3, 1918 will go down in history as the first day in over a century on which a foreign attack has been made on the shores of the United States.—Elizabethtown News.

Miss Alma Hoffman, of Henderson, while drawing water from a well 50 feet deep, fell 35 feet to the water but managed to keep afloat until her cries brought assistance and she was pulled up.

Senator James is about to make his escape from his three doctors.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

LARGELY ATTENDED AND BIG CLASS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS—PROF. WEATHERS' ADDRESS.

Commencement. My! what a word and how much it means to the young boy or girl who for the first time is permitted to wear the cap and gown! Last night this spirit thrilled 49 young souls as they experienced thrill after thrill from the time they entered the big Tabernacle to the congregations of friends upon their attainment after four years of struggle to reach this certain goal.

After a few preliminary numbers of music and remarks, which included the valedictory address by Miss Lucy Macrae, Prof. E. B. Weathers was introduced to deliver the graduation address. In his happy, serious and own inimitable style, he plunged into an address of education, warning and patriotism.

Realizing that negroes do the greater part of the cooking in Kentucky, the food administration will make special efforts to get them, especially the women, interested in the work of food conservation.

Plans are under way for a monster patriotic meeting of the negroes of the state on June 17 at Phoenix Hill, at which Mr. Sackett, Mayor Smith, Phil Brown and probably Gov. Stanley will speak. E. T. Attwell, of Washington, who is in charge of the food conservation campaign among negroes of the United States, also is expected to attend.—Louisville Herald.

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

(By International News Service.)

London, June 6.—In high Naval circles here the submarine activities off the American coast are regarded as the beginning of a continuous effort, with the object to sink transports.

FOLLOWING THE FLAG

Yesterday P. R. Ladd, T. P. Kennedy, and H. D. Wadlington went to Louisville to enlist in the Navy.

Capt. Warren Sights, son of Dr. H. P. Sights, has cabled to his father from France that he has arrived safe. Sights is a member of Red Cross Unit No. 13 which sailed for overseas 13 days ago.

John W. Venable, who went to Louisville this week, to enlist in the Navy, failed on account of underweight. He had before failed in seeking to enter the army, for the same reason.

Dr. Joseph L. Barker, of Pembroke, received his orders Wednesday from Washington inducting him into the service of the Medical Reserve Corps and he left yesterday for a training camp in Texas to train for overseas service.

Potter Lackey, who is with the U. S. Marines at Paris Island, has won a furlough and sharpshooter's medal by his marksmanship in competition tests. He is at home now on a visit to his mother, Mrs. W. A. Lackey, and brother and sisters on Walnut street.

Malcolm Quarles, one of the drafted men who left here April 26 for Camp Taylor, writes to his brother Fred, from New York saying that he expects to sail for overseas soon. He and Cy Williamson are together and are members of 32nd Field Artillery.

Young-Stewart.

Henry Young and Miss Hattie Stewart, of this county, were married in Clarksville Tuesday.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS TODAY

AND SPLENDID PROGRAM FOR FIRST DAY—DON'T FAIL TO HEAR BOOTH LOWERY.

The big Lincoln Chautauqua opens today in the tent stretched on the open lot of the Ellis Ice Co., on Clay street, where it was last year. The tent was put up yesterday afternoon and the manager, Mr. Kirk, will have everything ready for the Metropolitan Trio by 3 o'clock this afternoon. This is a high class musical aggregation and they will give a high class program at both the afternoon and night performances.

No finer selection could have been made for the opening lecture tonight than Booth Lowery. This famous lecturer should be heard by everyone. He is possessed of a dual nature and his lecturers are always finding him full of both humor and philosophy.

Booth Lowery is famous for his stage lectures "Fountain of Youth," "Black Sunshine," and "Simon Says 'Wigwag'." He is also head of the Department of Oratory in Blue Mountain College, Blue Mountain, Miss. This should be enough to recommend him to everyone. However, Prof. G. C. Koffman, who knows him well, says: "Booth Lowery is one of the greatest ever and nobody should miss hearing him."

Other good features will follow from day to day. Don't miss any of these. Dr. Lincoln McConnell will be here as will Major Poval and Montaville Flowers, the greatest monologists in the world. Either of these lecturers is worth the price of a season ticket. The Belgian and French orphans are to share in the proceeds above the expenses of the Chautauqua.

Mr. Weathers' philosophy of life, as given to the class is: Find out the path to happiness and keep in that path. This path is service, some kind of service, service to our fellow man.

At the close of Mr. Weathers' address Mr. W. A. Long, representing the school board, made a few remarks which was followed by the presentation of the diplomas by Prof. Koffman and a few closing remarks by Supt. J. W. Marion. The program closed with many congratulations and flowers showered upon the 18 boys and 31 girls who make up the class of 1918.

The H. H. S. has had a prosperous year and the city at large is justly proud of such a class as graduated last night. Eight of these were graduates of the commercial department.

The grade schools are all closing today.

THIRTEEN ARE ADDED

The Local Draft Board reports that 13 have been added to list of registrants reported in yesterday's paper. Ten of these came in by mail from boys who are employed away from here and three more who could not reach a station Wednesday night to register. The total now is 260 according to Mrs. Gillock, Chief Clerk of the Local Board. 140 whites and 120 colored.

STEGER-CAYCE.

Mr. Fenton Cayce and Miss Sara Steger motored to Clarksville, Tenn., Wednesday afternoon and were married. They were accompanied by her sister Miss Harriet Steger, Miss Myra Word, and Mr. Geo. Adcock. After the ceremony the young people immediately drove to the residence of the groom's parents, where an elegant supper was served. They will reside on the groom's farm near Beverly. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Steger and is a young lady of many accomplishments, attractive qualities and wide popularity. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Cayce and is one of the county's most enterprising and successful young agriculturalists.

YOUNG-STEWART.

There are seventeen dead, sixteen wounded and one missing in Wednesday's casualty list. No Kentuckians.

THEY KEEP ON GUNNING FOR THE HUNS IN THEIR OWN LINES

AERIAL PATROL IS WANTED

BY SECRETARY BAKER FOR COAST DEFENSE AND AGAINST SUBMARINE ATTACKS.

(By International News Service.)

With American Army at Marne, June 6.—French and American Marines at day break this morning attacked the Germans northwest of Chateau-Thierry. The Americans, attacking in the center, drove back the enemy nearly two miles on a front of two and a half miles. The Americans stormed the German positions through heavy hail of machine gun fire, scattered the Germans like chaff, inflicting bloody losses with rifles and automatic pistols.

The Americans advancing in waves broke clear through the enemy's lines. Although the Americans were unable to maintain the position they advanced was extremely successful in the center.

French on both wings encountered machine gun fire, which greatly hampered the assault.

Americans captured the German machine guns turned them on the enemy, advanced within a quarter of a mile of the German battery positions, inflicting heavy losses. An entire German battalion was put out of action.

NON-ESSENTIALS CUT OFF.

(By International News Service.)

Washington, June 6.—Secretary of War Baker to-day transmitted to Congress a request for $28,340,000 to build aviation stations for coast defense. Stations equipped with bombing and scouting planes will cover the two coasts and the Panama Canal and Hawaii, acting as an aerial patrol against future submarine surprises. No additional submarine attacks were reported today. It is believed that the submarines fled southward.

NON-ESSENTIALS CUT OFF.

Washington, June 6.—Non-essential industries tonight were cut off from steel and iron by the action of the War Industries Board in an agreement with American iron and steel institute. The order is effective at once.

NON-ESSENTIALS CUT OFF.

Paris, June 6.—French and American troops attacked and advanced to a depth of a kilometer on the front between Veuilly Woods, swept past Hill 142, seized ten machine guns, killed or captured the crew, and went over the top of the hill and down the other side taking every objective within three hours. Over 200 prisoners were taken.

An American patrol of thirty men whipped 200 Huns in a raid in Lorraine.

A detachment of Germans succeeded in crossing the Marne Tuesday, but every man was killed or captured.

ooo

The loss of life from the German U-boats has been definitely fixed at 16-10 passengers and 6 of the crew of the Carolina, who were lost in a storm while adrift at sea.

ooo

The Kaiser and Hindenburg are said to have decided to form regiments of convicts to be used for most dangerous undertakings. This no doubt means that they are to be used to fight Americans and if all who ought to be convicts are to be thus used the Sammies will soon be fighting the whole German army, the Kaiser included.

ooo

Three "wild men" on a desolate section of the Yorkshire coast of England were arrested recently and proved to be deserters from the army. The men had fairly comfortable quarters in a cave on a cliff. When their Robinson Crusoe-like existence was brought to an end, the first question asked was: "Has the war ended yet?"

ooo

The call for 200,000 more troops to be mobilized between June 24 and June 28 appeared correctly reported in yesterday's Kentuckian. In two of the big morning papers arriving here several hours later the same item was given but both had it "balled up." One had it "between the ages of 24 and 28" and the other had it from "July 24 to 28."

ooo

Theodore Roosevelt was the most distinguished of the prodigal sons who returned to the fold of the Republican Club of New York, at a dinner in the clubhouse Wednesday night. He swept through the crowded lobby, shouting "Hello!" to the men who once turned his picture to the wall, while they cheered him wildly. He greeted with particular warmth Oscar S. Straus, once the candidate of the progressives for governor of New York, another of the returning prodigals.

ooo

A bill is pending in the Senate which if passed would give national banks a wonderful advantage over other banks. It provides for a federal guarantee of national bank deposits of less than $5,000 and its passage is asked by Comptroller of Currency Williams in a circular letter. Arguments for the bill presented by the comptroller are that it would bring billions of hoarded dollars from foreign places, afford complete safety to more than 16,000,000 depositors, prevent runs on national banks, and "contribute more to the union and solidarity of the entire banking system than any thing that could be done at this time." So January 1, the comptroller says, national bank has failed and applications for new charters have been received.

Little-Hat Lady
By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

gone the mussel-shell hat and on another day a hat that had been suggested by the colors and shape of a spring onion. Upton had them for dinner the night before and had actually carried one to his room, put it in water and taken his design from life. That also was among the failures.

Upton knew that onion hat of his was original. Still some one else must have designed it simultaneously. For a week later as Upton sat at dinner he looked up and there two tables off the very pretty golden-brown blonde who dined alone and seemed to have few friends—Upton had seen her often and not infrequently recalled her face and coloring when summoning up imaginary models in his room—there, sat the little blonde wearing the onion hat. Yes, it was exactly like the hat he had designed, with the colors as given in his sketch reproduced exactly. An expert milliner could not have reproduced the sketch more faithfully, and the little blonde was just the model for that hat. Upton was in a fever of excitement. He wanted to tell his friends of the coincidence, but to do so would have necessitated telling of his own role as a hat designer.

Then—and this was really too much for Upton's peace of mind—the little blonde appeared one tempestuous spring night when the rain was pouring outside, and the wind could be heard rushing around the window panes—she appeared in the hat that he had designed when thinking of an airplane raid at night, and in the eyes that seemed all tenderness and mildness under the spring onion hat there was now a haunting look of distress and sorrow. But it was unmistakably Upton's hat. Then appeared the real masterpiece—the mussel-shell hat, and this seemed to suit the little blonde's face better, even than the others. It was a marvelous hat and it was worn by a wonderful model. Upton noticed the eyes of other diners focused on it and he realized then his success in designing it, though he could not guess how the hat had been made. There was nothing at all striking in the cut or coloring of the hat—in the usual acceptance of the word. That it attracted attention was, Upton knew, simply because it was distinctive.

After that Upton's models were all alike. The little blonde face haunted him and the millinery manager asked him to try and vary the type of hats he designed. They were all made for the same type of face. Upton began to lose sleep. It was not so much the mystery of the matter, though it was odd enough to have another person extract ideas from your mind in this way and bring into realization so successfully your thwarted dreams. The thing was that Upton was very much in love with the little blonde and that the little blonde was not absolutely indifferent as to his existence he might have learned to his own satisfaction from the way her eyes dropped to her plate whenever he looked toward her at dinner.

Finally after she had been wearing the three hats for three weeks he could stand the suspense no longer, and he bravely followed her out of the dining room one night, and with the manner of an old friend bade her a good evening. Not being repulsed, he sat talking with her in the hotel reception room.

Upton was a very direct sort of person and even before he sought to solve the mystery he told her that he was more interested in her than he had ever been in any girl before, and she, sweet, frank child that she was, told him that she was very glad of that, for she was lonely in the big city and didn't know any nice young men. That was encouragement enough even for a faint heart, and Upton's was not faint. Then Upton spoke of the hats. When he told her that he had designed them, she turned very scarlet and said she didn't know that it was from his room the chambermaid had got them. She said she had come to the city to study millinery, as the only talent she had ever displayed was that of making her own hats. So she had come and had expected to succeed in the school until she discovered that to begin with the pupils had to draw their own designs of hats and she simply could not draw. She told the chambermaid her troubles because she had no one else to talk to, and was all but decided to return home discouraged when the chambermaid brought her the crumpled drawings from one of the waste baskets. She had taken them to school and passed them off as her own work. It was dishonest but she was eager to succeed. Then she had worked out the designs and she had taken every prize the school offered. One of her hats was going to be sent to the international millinery exhibit—the mussel-shell one. The instructors were wild over it and a very well-known artist who gave them lectures on colors had declared that another was a masterpiece in tones. It suggested an air raid at night, he said, though she couldn't see how he thought that.

"So they are masterpieces, after all." Upton sighed, and before the evening was far spent they had not only settled all the plans for the wedding but were dreaming dreams of starting an exclusive shop in which they would combine their talents.

LISTEN TO UNCLE SAM

The Government desires to impress upon all patriotic Americans that it is just as much your duty to buy your winter supply of coal AT ONCE as it to subscribe to the Red Cross and Liberty Loans.

You should protect yourself at home against a fuel shortage this fall and winter; while at the same time you are serving our boys who are doing the fighting by releasing cars and transports for their use during the summer and winter.

IT IS IMPORTANT THAT YOU GIVE THIS YOUR IMMEDIATE ATTENTION.

Farmers cannot afford to delay getting their coal NOW, as it is as necessary as producing crops. Do not overlook an opportunity to haul a load of coal whenever you have a wagon in town.

If everyone pulls together, starts early and put their supply in now, it will avoid shortage, congestion and suffering, and will, no doubt, eliminate "Heatless Days" next winter.

The Government has designated June 3rd to 7th as the time in which to order your coal. Do not overlook this.

If you are not going to order coal please be patriotic and go to work on chopping and saving wood.

THE KENTUCKY OIL FIELDS

C. E. Crawford, who is interested in Eastern Kentucky Oil Fields, is in the city in the promoting of the "Bourbon Oil and Development Co." of Paris, Ky., a company that already owns many producing wells.

Dr. Elmer Northcutt, says the Oil World, twenty years ago, with the crude instruments of time, set out to prove his belief that there was oil in Kentucky. Against the pessimistic outlook he fought. And found oil—lots of it.

Today, with the oil industry flourishing in Eastern Kentucky, he sees a still more optimistic outlook.

"Development in Kentucky is only beginning," Dr. Northcutt declared recently. "The best wells have not been drilled. The largest pools are still untouched."

Dr. Northcutt says that the oil men of the present in this State cannot realize the difficulties which faced the men who blazed the trail. There are troubles now and many of them but the future, he says, is bright, and things are shaping themselves in favor of the industry.

"The oil wells now are necessarily being drilled near railroads, near boarding houses, and where big leases can be obtained. Bad roads have hurt the operators as they work their way in the new-found fields. It is hard to get casings for drilling, curbing for wells and machinery, but the oil men are plugging against the difficulties as we battled with the greater obstacles when there were greater hardships and the outcome was not so sure.

"There is a cheery outlook in the other direction," he said. "Now virtually any development in the State of Kentucky is valuable. A lucky strike, either of oil or gas, counts for gain. Gasoline plants are now being built in Menifee county, and soon will be built in other fields of Kentucky. Two gas lines extend through the field. Pipe lines from Monticello, in Wayne county, have been built to Parkersburg, W. Va., and there is a steady market for oil."

Dr. Northcutt is not a believer in luck in the oil business. The lucky strike idea is all wrong, he says. "The Kentucky field was not run into by accident to make men rich by a turn of fate."

The finding of oil in this State was brought about by cold study. Geological survey showed where lines and structures were located. This is his explanation of the exploration of the field.

Dr. Northcutt's story of the beginning of Kentucky gives an insight into the troubles met by the pathfinders as they drilled in fields unknown to the oil world.

Loaded in pushboats, his machinery was pushed by poles seventy miles up the Sandy river to the point chosen for the first oil development in that part of Kentucky. The first well was a "gusher" and flowed over the top of the derrick. The first production was put on the market and sold.

"A few years later I left Valley View and began development in the Ragland field. Mr. Dimmick and I were both believers in geology. We did our own drawing, located our own lines and structures. The discoveries of the early oil field in Kentucky did not occur by any accident, but by careful study and hard work."

"As usual in pioneering, the expense of obtaining the market for the oil, lack of pipe lines and accessibility to refineries, etc., made it a losing proposition to the pioneer operators at that time. Spending of enough money to build the line for running of oil was objected to."

"A few years later, with the largest steel tanks at that time in the world full of oil, I found myself practically 'broke.' There was no market, no pipe lines. It could not be sold."

"In what is now the Menifee gas field, the first well drilled at that time met a problem, in that it was utterly impossible to obtain a market for gas or oil. There was absolutely no market. Today, from this field, gas is being produced which for twelve years has supplied Lexington, Winchester and Mt. Sterling."

"It required large sums of money to build the Cumberland Pipe Line, which now takes oil from the field. His was done after the pioneer had proved there was oil in abundance."

Dr. Northcutt has drilled in Bath, Letcher, Estill, Powell, Rockcastle, Lincoln, Knott and Rowan counties, and declares that only in Rockcastle there has been a failure to strike oil. When asked for his opinion of Kentucky as a State, recently, Dr. Northcutt said:

"The fairest of Columbia's daughters has ever been elusive. From the aboys or mound-builders, the Red Men, American Indian, the sturdy pioneer Boone, Kenton, Estill, to her great educators and politicians of her own State, she has been shy and elusive.

"Now, with her sunny climate, her vast resources, with her thousands of acres of bluegrass, peopled with the most chivalrous and patriotic people on the globe, with her verdant fields stocked with the finest horses, cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry in the world, with her vast timber resources, with her almost inexhaustible beds of coal, her building stone, her asphalt, her lead, zinc, baratites, calcites, fields of flour spar, with at least thirty counties proven to carry two or more oil and gas-bearing structures when touched in the right spot will send forth her wealth of oil and gas equal in quality if not superior to any in the world, as it is so far removed from the large body of "mines" that help produce it, and freed from sulphur and other impurities, with the best Governor and Legislature in the World, why should any one hesitate to cast their lot with our fair State, elusive as she has been, and who fame and fortune in whatever branch you are best suited. She has the unbounded resources; she is getting the facilities to handle them. Roads of every kind are being constructed as fast as labor will permit. Pipe lines for oil and gas are being laid as fast as material can be put on the ground. This could not be done twenty years ago, about which I will tell you later. Come, see for yourself. Be patriotic. If you cannot go to France come to Kentucky. Columbia needs our resources. We must supply her needs and do it now."—Advertisement.

MABEL NORMAND PLAY NO-TABLE FOR TIMELINESS.

Reflects Spirit of the Day in Story of Patriotism and a Modern Joan of Arc.

If there is one thing that the art of the moving picture capitalizes above another in its stories it is timeliness. The Russian autoocracy crashes into the dust, and at least four films are flung upon the screens of America recording in story form the greatest modern revolution. Famous crimes, great cataclysms, new discoveries, almost every angle of the day's news, find their way quickly to the screen.

For this reason the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation is rather proud of the fact that in the words of the newspaper office it has "beaten" the industry and scored a "scoop" in the case of Porter Emerson Browne's "Joan of Plattsburg," in which Mabel Normand stars at the Princess tomorrow. It is not alone the first film to utilize that much-talked of also the first to show the life of our camp of the students officers; it is new army in training and the first to handle the stirring theme of America's part in the war, in a way that is both inspiring and yet untouched by powder, guns and death.

"Joan of Plattsburg" is a comedy-drama, as befits its star, first of screen comedians. But it is also, if one may coin a phrase, idealistic in tone. Its heroine is a "charter orphan" in one of those grim institutions where parentless children lightened their lonely little lives with pranks and mischievous laughter. Into her existence comes a book, "Joan of Arc" and a soldier. Little Joan of Plattsburg, N. Y., would be a second Jeanne d'Arc. She finds an old clothes boiler and makes herself armor. She plans brave deeds for her country. And then—comes the Great Chance. There in her own home she stumbles upon a spy plot involving grave disaster to her country. Still a funny little figure out of comedy, she rises to necessity and becomes indeed a modern Joan.

Eyes tested, lenses ground.

HARPISTE

MISS MARIE McADOO

Miss McAdoo is often asked how she happened to study the harp. When quite a small child she heard a harpist, and his playing, and his beautiful golden harp made such a deep impression on her that from that day it was her ambition to study the instrument and have one of her own. There are very few harp teachers, and these are only located in the larger cities, so at an early age she began the study of the piano, and continued it until old enough to enter the Oberlin Conservatory, where she received her first harp instruction under William Kilgore Breckinridge, a former student of the Curtis Conservatory. Later she was coached under Loretta DeLone, who for six years was harpist of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, and still later she studied with Enrico Tramonti, first harpist of the Chicago Symphony. She has been associated with Mme. Ringsdorf for several seasons and will play some solos composed especially for the harp and also rearrangements of songs and music well known on other instruments.

BIG DRAINAGE PROJECT.

Paducah, Ky., June 6.—The Fiscal Court of Marshall county in session at Benton, Ky., has made an order for the drainage of a tract of land, containing 7,000 acres and work will be started immediately. The land is in the Cypress swamps districts, near Gilbertsville, and is one of the richest tracts in Western Kentucky. The land owners decided to have the work done under the new drainage act, instead of the law of 1912. The court ordered the district into the hands of the Board of Drainage Commissioners. The improvement will cost several thousand dollars and will be borne by the land owners. All this land lies along the Tennessee river and when properly drained and put in a state of cultivation will add vastly to the wealth of Marshall county.
